World Adult Figure Skating
Yearbook 2024

The aim of the World Adult Figure Skating Yearbook 2024 is to present to the adult competitive Figure Skating Community, as well as the Federations, Officials, Judges and Media, an overview of the 3 ISU Supported International Adult Figure Skating Competitions (IAFSC) that took place during the 2023-24 season.

Along with these 3 major ISU events, we have identified more than 50 Adult Competitions around the World open to international adult athletes that comply with ISU rules. The WAFS Database has also recorded these results that will be presented at a later stage.

For this first edition, we will present exclusively data related to ISU IAFSC Figure Skating Single Events (Free Skating and Artistic Free Skating). This is a first step in a process that will be expanded in the future to incorporate more in depth and individual data as well as data from pairs and dance events.

Consider this edition as a work in progress, started more than 2 years ago, for which your feedback will be key in helping us select the data and the format of data that may be interested in having access to in the following editions.

The WAFS Yearbook 2024 is divided into 3 parts:

- The first part presents an aggregate of the 3 ISU supported events in order to provide insight to the size and the current state of the International Adult Competitive Figure Skating Community.
- The second part presents for each country the Season Best Total Segments Scores (TSS) and Total Elements Scores (TES) of all athletes that have competed in at least one event during the season in Free Skating or in Artistic Free Skating.
- The third part gives a synthetic view of each ISU competition of the season.

We hope that these facts and figures from the past season will support a better understanding of the nature and the qualities of the Adult Competitive Figure Skating Community. We look forward to seeing you again. Have a great Skating Season.

Executive
Summary

Executive Summary

With 3 major events in 2023-24 the Adult Competitive Figure Skating Season has been a dense and exciting year.

The season started in October 2023 in Nashville (USA) with the ISU IAFSC North America. It continued in January 2024 in Bormio (ITA) with the Winter World Masters Games and ended in May 2024 in Oberstdorf (GER) with the ISU IAFSC Europe.

799 skaters entered at least one event during the 2023-24 season, with 61% of them competing in Free Skating and Artistic Free Skating.

Unsurprisingly, women represented the large majority of skaters (86%), but 115 men nonetheless competed as well.

In terms of age the number of competitors by class decreases with age but the real shift appears between classes III and IV, above 58 years old. Class I represent 32% of the total Competitive Adult Figure Skaters, 28% for Class II, 27% for Class III, 11% for Class IV and 3% for Class V (above 68 years old).

Concerning categories, the higher the level, the fewer the number of competitors but the downward slope seems more linear. Bronze represented 40% of competitors last season, Silver 35%, Gold 17%, Masters 8% and Masters Elite 1%.

Executive
Summary

Only 8 skaters have participated in all 3 Free Skating Events of the season, but 128 have competed in 2 Free Skating Events (mainly Winter World Masters Games (WWMG) and one other ISU IAFSC). In term of Size, WWMG and ISU IAFSC Europe are quite similar with around 220 competitors for Figure Skating Single Events, while ISU IAFSC North America, which is early in the season welcomed only around 130 competitors.

Competitors represented 41 nations this season. With 51% of skaters, Europe is the region that provided the largest number of competitors in the 2023-2024 season, ahead of North America (39%) and Asia (14%). The overweight of European skaters may be explained by the location of 2 events this season in Europe. The reason for Asia being underrepresented is probably due to the absence of ISU Competitions in their region.

Logically, countries with ISU supported competitions provided the largest number of skaters (USA 21%, Germany 10% and Italy 10%) but 2 countries can nonetheless be found in the Top 5 (Canada 12% and Great Britain 9%).

With age groups ranging from 28 years old (Class I) to above 68 years old (Class V), the magnitude of result is obviously quite large. To the same extent, the 5 level categories from Bronze to Masters Elite welcome Adult Skaters with very different Skating Skills levels and backgrounds.

While many were newcomers in the Figure Skating competitive world others were former Olympians, World and/or National Champions.

Executive
Summary

In consequence, Total Segments Scores (TSS) Season Best of Skaters ranged from 7 to 86,25 points with Total Elements Score (TES) Season Best ranging from 1 to 30,39 points across Classes and Categories.

To give a better vision of adult performances, several tables breakdown Season Best TSS and TES by Class and Category. Aside from Maximum Season Best by Class and Category, the Median is a key metric to approach the performances of each class in each category. Median TES for Bronze was 6,6 points, 8,6 in Silver, 10,9 in Gold, 13,2 In Masters and 23,0 in Masters Elite. These empirical findings confirm the relevance of the current categories.

Median TSS for Bronze was 20,4 (with a PCS factor 2), 26,8 in Silver (PCS factor 2), 38,7 in Gold (PCS factor 2,67), 47,9 in Masters (PCS factor 2,67) and 72,0 in Masters Elite (PCS 2,67).

Including Median and Minimum for Top 3 in tables help mitigating the influence of potential outliers in each category.

As expected, for those that enter several events their Season's Best progressed throughout the year, and the majority of Season's Best by Class and Category were achieved at the end of the season during the ISU IAFSC Europe. It's worth noting that very few skaters (only 5) changed category during the year.

While recognising that the season's best by class and category "Hall of Fame" is of primary importance, the Season's Best TSS and TES by category only (whatever the age group) is also worthy of note. It is interesting to observe that in this table, younger skaters (Class I) aside, the ranking welcomes 30% of older skaters from class II to IV. It is also worth mentioning that these top skaters in their respective categories represented 14 different countries.

Executive
Summary

Continuing in the same vein, the Top 20 skaters Season's Best list leads to the same conclusion. If Class I and Masters Elite skaters naturally dominates the list, Skaters from older Classes or Lower Category Skaters also find their way into this Elite Group.

During the 2023-24 season, the Women's Season Best TSS was achieved by Regan Alsup (USA, Class I+II, with a TSS of 80,03 points in the ISU IAFSC Europe in Oberstdorf) while the Women's Season Best TES was achieved by Ashlee Pantano (USA, Class I+II, with a TES of 30,39 points in the ISU IAFSC North America in Nashville).

On the men's side, the Men's Season Best TSS was achieved by Gary Beacom (CAN, Class IV, with a TSS of 86,25 points during the Winter World Masters Games in Bormio) while the Men's Season Best TES was achieved by Robert Przepioski (USA, Class I with a TES of 29,56 points in the ISU IAFSC North America in Nashville).

The Season Best TES and TSS (Free Skating) and TES (Artistic Free Skating) of the 799 athletes that competed at least once during the 2023-24 season are presented in the second part of the Yearbook along with their Class, Category and the location of their best performances. The list is given in alphabetical order for each country to make finding a skater easier.

Many other metrics are available for Skaters Performances Analysis in the WAFS Database. The most relevant for readers may be disseminated at a later stage.

To end this first edition, several tables are presented for each Single Event (Free Skating and Artistic Free Skating) of ISU supported IAFSC.

Executive
Summary

The tables presented increased throughout the year as the framework of this Adult Figure Skating Yearbook was taking shape.

For Oberstdorf, the most recent event of the Season, it includes the presentation of TSS, TES and Podium by Class and Category, the Medal Ranking by Country and the Best TSS by Category (all classes included).

This Yearbook provides a unique in-depth analysis of ISU supported International Adult Figure Skating Competitions of the 2023-24 season. It will contribute to a better understanding of the current state of this community, its size, its behaviour and its performances at the macro level as well as at the individual level.

Our goal is to promote the Adult Competitive Figure Skating practice around the world by raising awareness of its current state of development and level of performances grounded only on facts and figures from reliable sources.

This First Edition is still a work in progress that will evolve with the needs and demands of the various stakeholders. We hope that you will find in this edition of the World Adult Figure Skating Yearbook 2024, facts and figures of interest for you. Gary Beacom

Hello Gary

Thank you so much for your time and for sharing your experience with us.

You achieved last season the best total score (86,25) of all in an International Adult Figure Skating Competition supported by the ISU. Congratulations for this great performance that took place in January 2024 during the Winter World Masters Games in Bormio IT.

Previously, as competitive skater you did 2 world championships (1983 and 1984), participate to the Olympic games of Sarajevo (1984), and got rewarded twice as vice champion of Canada (1983 and 1984). After that, in your professional career you continue competing and won the World Professional Championship (1988). That's fruitful skating career !

- Could you tell us more about what motivated you to compete as an adult in the WWMG and ISU IAFSC?

Gary: I enjoy the challenge of competing. It brings out the best in me. It is also an excellent way to inspire others to drive themselves to the heights of their potential.

Gary Beacom

- Why competing with us after such an amazing skating life?

Gary: I do not like to revel in the past. My sense of self-esteem comes from what I am able to do here and now.

- Tell us about your early days in figure skating?

Gary: I began skating as a little boy and have made slow steady progress continuously since that time. I do not measure my progress in terms of what jumps I am able to do, like I used to and like many skaters do, but rather by my overall development in this most multi-faceted sport and art form.

- What is your best memory as a competitive skater?

Gary: I do not play favorites, whether it be about colors, other skaters, or places. The technical and creative journey itself is what satisfies me, regardless of what twists and turns it takes.

- Could you describe to us your current training routines as a Class IV Men (with great Skating Skills) and how you balance that with your professional & personal life ?

Gary: I avoid routines. I use opportunities and circumstances to advance my career as a matter of lifestyle. I concern myself with good nutrition, which happens to be mostly vegan for the last several years, minimal exposure to toxins, myofascia and muscle massage, good posture, and healthy relationships.

Gary Beacom

- Do you adapt your training routine as you get closer to a competition?

Gary: Yes. I taper off the duration of practices, increase their intensity, and prioritise rest and deep breathing throughout the days and hours.

On top of your impressive skating skills, it seems you love playing with the limit of balance. You seem in constant search of unconventional moves which makes your performance apart and unique. Could you give us an insight into the process you follow when putting together your programs?

Because I use foot pressure distribution for balance instead of vision, I am able to maintain equilibrium regardless of the position of my body. The unconventional and creative moves are a result of the development of my technique, as well as a desire to keep the sport interesting. I generally get into what some would describe as a "flow state", which is motivated by the music. The particulars of the choreography are often secondary and extemporaneous.

What are, for you, the key differences/challenges of Competitive Adult Figure Skating in comparison with Senior skaters?

We can rely more on maturity to chalk up component scores and grades of execution from the judges, as opposed to younger skaters who are able to impress the tech specialists more.

- What are your next personal challenges as a skater, or what would you still like to achieve in the future as an adult skater?

Gary: I don't set goals. I just keep an open mind and learn whatever lessons are presented to me. I have no expectations when I step onto the ice. I just try to see how far I can take it every time.

- Is the current adult competition format appealing to skaters like you that used to compete in junior and senior competitions?

Gary: I would personally prefer a much simpler adjudication method. I find requirements for levels of difficulty to be somewhat arbitrary and stifling.

- What advice would you give to the “New Generation” of competitive adult skaters that started skating late ?

Gary: Develop your skills sequentially with a view to avoiding bad habits, accidents, and injury. Nudge the limits of your comfort zone. Curb your hubris.

- Will we see you on the circuit next year ?

Gary: The future is uncertain. I will certainly strive to compete whenever it makes sense in the context of my life.

- You are an inspiration for many adult skaters but also for the younger generation. Thank you for having taken the time to share your life as an adult skater with us, it's of great value to all of us.

Hello Regan

You achieved last season the best total score (80,03) of any women in an IAFSC supported by the ISU. Congratulations for this great performance that took place in May 2024 in Oberstdorf, Germany.

- Could you tell us more about what motivated you to compete as an adult?

Regan : I retired from competitive skating just before leaving for college and, during that time, I took up playing ice hockey. I was lucky that my university had a women's club ice hockey team so I played that for five years (one year out of school). Around the time I was finishing up my final season playing hockey, a friend that I grew up skating with moved to Washington, DC (where I was living at the time). He and I would skate together for fun, but he was training to compete in the US Figure Skating adult circuit. He encouraged me to give it a try – I've always been a competitive person, so I loved the idea of getting back into competing which helped motivate me to get back on the ice skating more consistently. I skated my first season as an adult in 2014 and have been competing every year since!

- Tell us about your early days in figure skating?

Regan: I grew up in Michigan in the United States, which gets quite cold in the winter and my mom believed that every kid who grows up in Michigan should know how to skate . She put my brother and I in skating lessons when we were about two years old – I basically learned to walk and skate at the same time! At first, I only stayed in skating because I wanted a dress, which my mom promised me when I reached a certain level. Once I got to that level, I was hooked and trained competitively for the rest of my childhood until I was 17.

Regan Alsup

- What is your best memory as a competitive skater?

Reagan: My best memory growing up was probably the one season I skated as an Intermediate. At the time in the US, we had Regional competitions that led directly to Junior Nationals (only for Juvenile & Intermediate). Regionals was in Ohio, where I have a lot of family and friends, and I was SO nervous, but had been skating really well leading up to it. I skated really well and ended up winning, and it was so fun to skate so well and win in front of so many family and friends. Junior Nationals that year was in a small town in New York and it was just a really fun competition, the whole local community came out to support and we just had the best experience.

In my adult career, my best memory was probably the second year I won US Adult Nationals (2017). I had been skating the best I'd ever skated in my adult career until that moment, but I was again so nervous to defend my title. I ended up skating cleanly and successfully defended my title in front of my family, which was such a great memory to share with them.

Another great memory was landing a triple toe in competition in 2022. When I got back on the ice as an adult I NEVER thought I would be landing triples again, so that was just a very special moment. Just wish I would have landed it at Nationals that year!

Overall, though, I have so many great memories of competing as an adult – and most of them revolve around having my family and friends come out to support. My skating has been a great excuse for family and friends to get together over the years – my parents have been to almost every single adult competition I've skated in – and I love having them in the audience.

Regan Alsup

- To get a total element score of 29 requires a lot of practice on and off ice in order to be in great physical condition. Could you describe to us your training routines and how you balance that with your professional & personal life ?

Regan: Finding balance between skating and professional/personal life as an adult is HARD. Truthfully, I don't usually make it to the rink as often as I would like. I'm usually only skating 2-3 hours a week leading up to the competitive season, and even less in the off-season. I also travel a lot for work, so I will go a week or two weeks without training at a time. Leading up to Oberstdorf, I was sick so only skated once or twice in the weeks leading up to it, and then was in London for work the week before, so had that entire week off the ice. I find that the key to training as an adult is to make sure I'm keeping my body in shape off the ice, so when I'm on the ice I can really focus on consistency and bringing all the pieces of my program together, rather than the conditioning. Off the ice, I run, do strength and training, and generally try to keep an active lifestyle (hiking, cycling, etc.)

- Do you adapt your training routine and diet as you get closer to a competition?

Regan: When I have time! Because I travel so much for work, it really depends on where I am and what access I have to a rink leading up to competition. But in my ideal world, I'll skate three hours a week leading up to a competition. I don't want to change too much, though, or it makes me more nervous on competition day.

Regan Alsup

- On top of your impressive skating skills, you pay great attention to detail. Could you give us an insight into the process you follow when putting together your programs?

Regan: As an adult, I don't work with a coach or choreographer – so all the choreography in my programs is my own! The biggest piece for me is finding the right music. Part of what I love about skating, especially as an adult, is the blend of athleticism and artistry and interpreting the music and building out a really meaningful program is a big part of that. Once I have music selected, I'll watch a lot of choreography from skaters on the Grand Prix circuit and find inspiration to try new ways to blend steps, elements and other choreographic moments from those that do it best! I also constantly take inspiration from other adults that I compete against – they're always pushing me to be better, especially as I get older and the women I compete against get younger!

- What are, for you, the key differences/challenges of Competitive Adult Figure Skating in comparison with Junior and Senior skaters?

Regan: The biggest difference in my experience is the mentality around training and performing. When I was training at the Junior/Senior level when I was younger, skating was my job. Everything I did, ate, thought about, etc. was about how to make myself a better competitor. And I had the resources and time to support that – I had access to elite coaches and trainers, almost unlimited time on and off the ice to train, etc. As an adult, skating is my break from my job. On one hand, that takes SO much pressure off – it's really just about enjoying the sport I've loved my entire life and celebrating how amazing it is that my body can still support me on the ice at almost the same level. But on the other hand, I would LOVE to have the same time and resources now that I did when I was younger!

Regan Alsup

- What are your next personal challenges as a skater, or what would you still like to achieve in the future as an adult skater?

Regan: I'm at a bit of a crossroads with my skating. Oberstdorf was really my last big bucket list item in my adult skating career, so I'm trying to decide what comes next. Regardless, I know I'll find myself on the ice in some form or fashion!

- Is the current adult competition format appealing to skaters that used to compete in junior or senior competitions?

Regan: Absolutely, and becoming even more so! In the US, it's really been amazing to see how the talent pool at the US Adult Championships has grown since I started competing. I'm really proud to be part of the cohort of adult skaters who helped to raise the bar in terms of level of competition and interest. It's very unique to have the opportunity to compete at a national level in any sport as an adult, and I am really grateful to US Figure Skating for supporting that. I'm hopeful that will help inspire other countries who may not have the same option to adopt a similar model – and grow the popularity of elite adult skating on an international level!

Regan Alsup

- What advice would you give to the “New Generation” of competitive adult skaters that started skating late ?

Regan: Well even before we get to any advice, I would just say that skaters who start skating and competing as an adult are really the heart of adult figure skating in my experience. They have such dedication to the sport and really drive the culture of adult skating. So I would first just say how grateful I am for how they carry this sport and advocate to open doors for adult skaters in the US and internationally.

As far as advice, I would just tell all adult skaters to remember that everyone starts skating as an adult with a different baseline – some of us don’t remember a time in our lives when we didn’t know how to skate, and some have never even been to an ice rink until they begin their skating journey. Adult skating is such an incredible journey regardless of one’s baseline, and I would just encourage everyone to set their own milestones and goals and not compare themselves to others. At the end of the day, you are making such an incredible effort to carve out time for yourself on the ice, and you should enjoy every moment.

- Will we see you on the circuit next year ?

Regan: I have some plans away from the rink this year and next, which will likely make it not possible for me to compete. But I’d like to try to get back to it in the next year or two!

- You are an inspiration for many adult skaters. Thank you for having taken the time to share your life as an adult skater with us, it’s of great value to all of us.

The aim of the World Adult Figure Skating Yearbook 2024 is to present an overview of the 3 ISU Supported International Adult Figure Skating Competitions (IAFSC) that took place during the 2023-24 season. This first edition, we will present exclusively data related to ISU IAFSC Figure Skating Single Events (Free Skating and Artistic Free Skating).

This Yearbook 2024 is divided into 3 parts:

- The first part presents an aggregate of the 3 ISU supported events in order to provide insight to the size and the current state of the International Adult Competitive Figure Skating Community.
- The second part presents for each country the Season Best Total Segments Scores (TSS) and Total Elements Scores (TES) of all athletes that have competed in at least one event during the season in Free Skating or in Artistic Free Skating.
- The third part gives a synthetic view of each ISU competition of the season.

Emmanuel Perrin, PhD is a former member of the Executive Board of the French Ice-Skating Federation. He started skating as an adult and began competing in Single Figure Skating events at the age of 54. He is currently competing in Gold. contact@worldafsddata.com
